WE NOMINATE

Henry Bates Ross, one of this academic community's most thoughtful educators, who as successor to the late James Howard Murch has launched his first school year as headmaster of 24-year old Princeton Country Day School. A member of the institution's faculty since 1929 and the kind of teacher a former student describes as "stimulating even for a wiggling grade-school boy," Ross at age 40 has accepted the challenge of consolidating Dr. Murch's remarkable gains while looking to the future and gearing the school's development to the needs of an area in which privately financed education has always flourished.

Although born in New York City, Ross, the son of a British naval officer and the grandson of a former president of Aberdeen University, was educated in Scotland, Canada and England. He was a Governor General's medal-winner in secondary school, took his B.A. at Dalhousie University, earned a master's degree at McGill and did further graduate work at Cambridge. To this cosmopolitan preparation for a teaching career, he added such diverse experience as the editorship of his university newspaper, energetic participation in theatricals and even a voyage to Europe in a wallowing freighter's forecandle.

Ross, growing with P.C.D. as its enrollment inched upward year after year, turned his back on English classes in 1943 and volunteered for duty with the American Field Service. His wartime years carried him to the Near East, Africa and Italy. It was in Italy, possibly during the early dreary days at Anzio, that he saw more clearly than ever before that elementary education must do everything within its means to inculcate in youth a sense of personal responsibility for the well-being of this nation and the world.

Reasonable stress upon the significance of current events, a forward step in a school ranging from the fourth to ninth grades, will become one characteristic of P.C.D. under Ross' leadership. In the same way that Ross, a charter member and former president of the Community Players, has made time for outside interests, P.C.D. students will be exposed to the "well-rounded life," including studies, athletics and extra-curricular activities. Ross, for instance, is extremely proud of P.C.D.'s reputation as an incubator for intercollegiate hockey players, a reputation enhanced a year ago when a clear majority of Princeton University's varsity squad was drawn from the ranks of P.C.D. alumni.

For understanding that all schools must constantly guard against the danger of slipping into long-traveled, meandering ruts; for personifying the spirit of faith and endeavor that has made the independent school an all-important factor in American education; for skilfully dovetailing his own thoughts with the well-laid plans of his able predecessor, he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

Topics of the Town

The Week's News. On Nassau Street, restaurants were more crowded than ever, stores watched sales boom, 550 freshly bedinked members of the class of 1951 jaywalked eagerly through ever-increasing traffic jams. Other schools set new enrollment records—at Princeton High first day the overflow stood up in study hall. Princeton once again was bursting at the seams and as it grew, it made more news than usual:

Seven short days after it began, Jugtown's crisis passed its climax—temporarily, at least. Odds were all that rezoning east of Harrison Street would be postponed, the pending ordinance shelved. The Princeton Film Center, innocently swept into the center of last week's whirlpool, erased plans to buy the Grover house. But if the business district could not expand eastwards, many a resident wondered where it could go. As yet, skyscrapers had few backers.

Night football, long accepted elsewhere, was coming to Princeton. The high school readied plans to launch its 1947 season on University Field a week from Friday with a portable lighting system furnishing illumination. If the opener (against Morrisville) was successful, more after-dark grid battles would follow.

To assist in municipal problems by providing manpower for studying special projects, the Princeton Civic Association called its first annual meeting for Tuesday night of the coming week in Borough Hall. Every resident may join and lend a hand.

It's New to Us

Film Editing Class. One of the newest of the many things that have been "new to us" is this class for would-be film editors. Because there probably are those who know nothing of the motion picture field but would like to, we will throw in a one-sentence (about as far as we could go) definition of film editing—i.e., the process of completing a motion picture after the actual shooting is done.

James A. Love, in the movie business "all my life," a motion picture film editor for six years, will do the instructing. The class will meet once a week and, after bare preliminaries, will launch its real project: the putting together of a documentary (using stock shots), script, research, sound effects, and all that goes with it.

Mr. Love does not claim that this class will get you a job in Hollywood, or elsewhere: he does maintain that it will give you a background to build on and follow up. Knowing Mr. Love, we are willing to bet that the background will be very solid.

Mere practical details, such as date, place and hour are being formulated. By the time you read this, the whole story can be had by calling Mr. Love, 2336-J; further details in next week's TOWN TOPICS.

Custom-Dyed Rugs. It almost hurts to run into a thing like this when we think of how we could have used it not so very long ago—remember the days when a timid inquiry for just any old rug brought forth that lady-don't-you-know-there's-a-war-on sort of remark?

TOPICS OF THE TOWN

Robert Taylor, graduate student in architecture, lent new emphasis to the housing shortage by designing and beginning construction himself on a house on Jefferson Road. Other veterans, still campaigning for homes, had their hopes raised slightly. A Princeton Township official reportedly commented: "Sure we believe in housing. Some day people will live in it."

At its weekly dinner meeting in the Nassau Tavern, the Lions Club paid TOWN TOPICS a deeply-appreciated compliment. Each Tuesday night henceforth, the Lions will have as their guest the Princetonian whom TOWN TOPICS selects as Man (or Woman) of the Week.

Trinity Church named Lewis B. Cuyler head of a committee to select a new rector. Sunday's congregation heard that Dr. Arthur L. Kinsolving, in charge of the parish for the past seven years, would leave November 1 to become rector of St. James' Episcopal Church in New York.

The town welcomed (for $28,000) a pair of brand new fire engines, ordered two full years ago . . . the AVC completed plans for its dance this Friday night at Avalon with red the dominant theme of its decorations.

Performing the neat feat of winning three games in the playoffs after dropping the first two, the Phantoms defeated the Cenerinos, won the "A" League title in softball and the TOWN TOPICS trophy . . . the varsity football team gave Columbia a fairly sound going over in what was announced as a three-touchdown tie, sent optimism upwards on the Tiger coaching staff.

News of the Theatres

The Playhouse

Welcome Stranger (Fri. thru Wed.) pictures Bing Crosby as a gay young doctor sent to replace aging Barry Fitzgerald in a small New England town. When the latter won't leave because he doesn't trust his carefree successor, the two argue entertainingly throughout a pleasant film.

Song of the Thin Man (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) sets William Powell and Myrna Loy to solving a murder aboard a gambling ship. Satisfactory light comedy-drama.

The Garden

Black Gold (Fri., Sat.) has the Kentucky Derby as its setting and routine melodrama about a poor but honest Indian and crooked smugglers as its plot. Not much here.

Duel in the Sun. (Mon., Tues., Wed.) labelled by Time Magazine as "the sexiest horse opera ever made," is a tremendously colorful, noisy, action-packed Western starring Jennifer Jones, Gregory Peck, Joseph Cotten. Produced for $6,000,000, it runs over two hours, asks double the usual price.

The Last of the Red Men (Thurs. Fri., Sat.) is another but far quieter drama also featuring gun play in the bad lands. With Jon Hall.

The McCarter

Command Decision (Fri., Sat.) tells of an AAF general who must order flight after flight of heavy bombers from England into Nazi-held Europe without fighter protection and the terrific pressures under which he and his officers work. An all-male cast in what may be unusually good entertainment.

IT'S NEW TO US

In any case, we have come so far that you can now plan your color scheme around something other than your rug, knowing that you can get whatever shade you want for that.

At the Rug Mart, a bit out on the Somerville road (see elsewhere in T.T. for phone number), there is available a very fine grade of broadloom, at the moment in a natural shade, waiting to become any color. You can either choose from charts there, or if there is the blood of a paint mixer in you, make up your own color and see a sample of the result before selecting it for your rug.

The point of this special service is to give decorator, home or professional, a chance to get away from strictly routine colors. Amazingly enough, the cost is very little more than that of a good broadloom; specifically, the only extra charge for a custom-dyed rug is eight cents per square foot to cover the dying.

Beer Mugs. We grant you that beer mugs in Tigertown are nothing very unusual. However—they continue to be used, so if they are going to be used, a bargain should always be welcome; and that we can offer you by way of The Wine & Game Shop, 6 Nassau Street.

The mugs are real china—upon first look we'd have said bone china; later learned that it was Lennox and American Belleck—white with the Princeton seal (we defy anyone to get tired of it), large-handled and ample.

The bargain part will ring a bell with anyone who really knows china—they are only $3.95. The reason for this reduction, actually about one-fourth of what they sell for in at least one New York store, is that they are seconds. That means there is a small flaw somewhere. We couldn't see one in the mugs we looked at; we'll wager neither you nor the recipient of your gift would either.

Health statistics listed one case of polio in August, showed that the record trend in births at Princeton Hospital was continuing. Mr. & Mrs. Harold Hinkson, Jr., Mt. Lucas Road, were the parents of a son, daughters were born to Mr. & Mrs. Christopher R. Rogers, R.D. 2; Mr. & Mrs. Lawrence Yates, 14 Spruce Street; Mr. & Mrs. John Goble, Lower Harrison Street, Mr. & Mrs. Salvatore Balestrieri, 51 Birch Avenue.

In Brown Hall on the Seminary campus, vacant before the new term began, a janitress noted signs of an intruder, resented his untidy habits. She left him a note: "Please leave us a calling card. We'd like to know who our visitor is. Also, there are wastebaskets for your cigarette butts."

Next day, the reply said, "Thanks. I'll remember the wastebaskets." It was signed, "Lucky." Spending two or three nights in the rooms and helping himself to clothing, he may soon answer charges of breaking and entering and larceny now awaiting him. In the form of a suitcase whose contents have revealed his identity, "Lucky" may have left his calling card after all.
